Starting prices

Fiat job	What raises the price	From
Cutting a Fiat blade	Flip blade or fixed blade	£50
Coding a key you already have	Security code read from the car	£60
Fiat remote repair	A dead button, cell or cracked case	£60
Broken Fiat key drawn out	How deep the piece sits	£80
Fiat unlocked	Lock type and alarm state	£85
Fiat ignition barrel	Barrel rebuilt or swapped	£150
Body or immobiliser module repair	Module coded back to the car	£150
Fiat spare key	Flip key or remote, model year	£145
Fiat replacement key	A worn or broken key swapped	£145
Keyless Fiat fob	Push button start models	£150
Ducato, Doblo or Fiorino key	Van year and key style	£145
Every Fiat key lost	Missing keys wiped, new key learned	£180

Each price is where that Fiat job starts. Lockouts late at night and the newest Fiats on shared Stellantis platforms start higher, and the price for your Fiat is fixed from the registration before Ben drives out.

Fiat key types

Fiat key style	Where you see it	What Ben does at the car
Plain chip key	Older Panda, Punto, Seicento and Doblo	Blade cut, chip coded using the security code
Flip key with remote	500, Panda, Punto, Tipo, 500L, 500X, Doblo and Ducato	Blade cut, chip and buttons coded
Remote with fixed blade	Some Panda, Fiorino and Qubo models	Blade cut, chip and remote coded
Keyless fob	Higher trims of the later 500X, Tipo, 500e and 600	Fob coded for keyless entry and start
Red master key	Fiats of the 1990s and early 2000s	Kept safe, it was used to code new keys

What to have ready

The registration, the Fiat model and year, where the car is and whether any key still works. Keep the V5C and photo ID at the car, as ownership is checked before a key is cut, and have every Fiat key there, because many Fiats rewrite their whole key list. Lockouts are taken at any hour, and planned work is booked between 8am and 7pm, Monday to Saturday.
